

Ponders a wider variety of column offerings

I'm not anti-religious but I am a freethinker, and I'm all for free speech, but I do wonder why there are regular columns by evangelist Billy Graham and, oddly enough, below the comics and right across from the Horoscope. Wouldn't it be more interesting and informative for readers to see a regular column by representatives of various faiths, frequently balanced by people of no faith? At least respectful, rational perspectives might offer readers something more to think about than voices from heaven and heavenly places.
